An Unpublished Incident in the Life of Gov. Carlin.

The Severe But Beneficial Treatment Received by the Old-Time Illinois Statesman for Playing the Part of a Bully.

A few days ago an incident in the life of Gov. Carlin came to light which has never yet found its way into print, which is undoubtedly true, and which illustrates most forcibly the greatness of the man. John C. Reeves, the receiver of the land office at Shawneetown, was sent to Edwardsville to take temporary charge of the office there. Reeves, says the Chicago Tribune, was a powerfully muscular man, over six feet tall, an athlete and a "sure shot." A college graduate, he had been sent west to take charge of the Shawneetown land office, but spent much of his time in supervising other offices and disentangling the affairs when complications caused by inefficient officers arose. He was quiet and reserved, yet withal a genial companion when once he became well acquainted. He boarded at the "tavern," but spent nearly all of his time when not eating or sleeping in the office, so that he made few acquaintances in the town. One evening he went to supper, and upon entering the office (barroom it was then called) he noticed sitting in a chair a small-sized man, who would not weigh more than one hundred and twenty-five pounds, and who apparently was sick. In a few moments the door opened and in stalked a man fully as large and muscular as Reeves. He looked around the room a moment, then went up to the sick man, who was a stranger to him, made some remark and closed by slapping him in the face with his open hand, but in such a violent manner as to knock him off of the chair. As the invalid arose, Mr. Reeves expostulated with the assailant, who at once informed him that if he did not like it he "could have some of the same medicine." The words were scarcely out of his mouth when Reeves, with one bound, jumped from his chair and dealt the man a blow in the face that sent him sprawling over a chair and on to the floor; he followed up the blow by jumping on the prostrate form of the man and raining blows upon his face with almost lightning-like rapidity. The noise brought the landlord and one or two others to the scene, who, by main strength, pulled Reeves from his victim. The latter arose, looked around, and staggered out. Then there was such consternation as had not been known in Edwardsville for a long time. Mr. Reeves was informed that the man he had assaulted was none other than Tom Carlin, the recognized "bully" of all that county, a man of whom all persons were afraid, though all admitted that when sober he was a good citizen. Mr. Reeves did not seem to be at all alarmed, but went about his business as usual.

The evening of the third day, while he was alone in his office, in walked a man with a bruised and bandaged face, who looked very much as though he had been in a cyclone. "Are you Mr. Reeves?" he asked. "Yes, that is my name; what can I do for you?" "My name's Tom Carlin. I'm the fellow you whipped at the tavern the other night, and I came in to say that you done right; I was a coward to knock that sick man over, and I deserved all I got." "I am very glad that you feel that way about it," replied Reeves. "Well, I do, and I'm in earnest. Now, say, I've been a bully just as long as I want to be; I want to learn to read and write and cipher and try to make a man of myself, and I want you to help me if you will." Mr. Reeves expressed not only his willingness, but also the pleasure it would give him to teach Carlin while he remained in Edwardsville. Every night Carlin was on hand, and he was a most apt pupil. Reeves, however, did not remain long, but soon after he left Carlin married a woman who was quite well educated, and he pursued his studies under her tuition. It was no easy matter for him to break away from the companions with whom he had so long associated, but he had the moral courage to do so, and removed to Greene county. He was the first sheriff of that county, and located its present county seat and donated considerable land for public purposes. He was twice elected to the state senate, and 1838 was elected as the sixth governor of the state. It is said he always regarded Reeves as one of his best friends, and, as sheriff, senator and governor, frequently consulted him as to private and public affairs.

Experience with Death.

Fernleigh L. Montague, the English artist who killed his wife and himself in Washington a few days ago because he could not sell his pictures, had once before a serious experience with death. He ran away to America when a young man to escape the apprenticeship to a barrister to which he had been bound by his father. A short time afterward a body was found floating in the Thames and was buried as his. He did not learn of this fact till twelve years later, when the legacies which should have come to him had been divided among other heirs. He was looked upon by the laws of England as dead, and could not prove his identity in the courts. But it required a pistol shot to make him as dead in America as he had been for a quarter of a century in England.

FOR PHONETIC SPELLING.

A Brand New Scheme for Revolutionizing English Orthography.

Congressman Durborow, of Chicago, has introduced in the house a memorial praying congress to adopt a method of phonetic spelling. The alphabet presented for adoption has been prepared by John M. Mott, of that city, and is the result of many years' work.

Mr. Mott has been interested in educational work for twenty years, although engaged in the insurance business. His phonetic alphabet was almost complete when the bill recently presented and passed the lower house of congress to a second reading asking the appropriation of five million dollars for the establishment of phonetic schools caused him to hurry it through. According to the memorial and the author's statement no government aid aside from a possible commission of experts is asked, and the principal clause of the prayer is for the adoption and recommendation by congress of "the American alphabet" for general use.

The alphabet contains but thirty-one letters, if consonants and vowel characters are written in full. Twenty-four of these are taken from the present English alphabet; the remainder are modifications of the present forms. The intent is to spell a word exactly as pronounced, doing away with all silent or misleading letters.

"We ask no money and present the American alphabet for the consideration of congress and for the free use of all," said Mr. Mott to an Evening News reporter the other day. "The five million dollar type foundry scheme now pending should never go through and if our memorial is adopted we will revolutionize English orthography."

"What do you mean by a five million type foundry scheme?"

"There is a bill now before congress, which is on second reading in the house, making appropriation of five million dollars for the establishment of phonetic schools. This will not do away with the surplus type, as we will, and as I do not believe it necessary for either tests or trial schools this money would be thrown away. If congress looks favorably on our memorial, then we will make a light request that a commission of twelve be appointed to adjudge the merits of the alphabet before final decision by congress. This commission, if appointed, should consist of three eminent philologists, three high educationalists, three practical printers and three proof readers of recognized ability."

"What do you hope to accomplish?"

"The adoption of a system that will be practical, efficient, intelligent and fatal to type monopolies. Ever since the days of Franklin have there been efforts made to shorten the existing modes of spelling, but no individual effort will accomplish anything. The growth of language is too great for any one man to direct a change, as it must have some standard. This standard I hope to establish by the aid of congress, the latter only setting that standard by recommendation and adoption, not by the expenditure of money. There's no money in it for me, but the cause is one I am glad to advance."

A HORRIBLE FIND.

Two Skeletons Whose Discovery Points to a Medieval Tragedy.

A curious discovery was lately made by a wine-grower in the department of the Charente, says the Belfast News-Letter. Adjoining his property are the ruins of an ancient chateau, which has been left to its fate for centuries. As part of one of the walls of this old pile was showing symptoms of an approaching collapse, the peasant obtained permission to remove it and a few days ago he set to work to demolish it.

After toiling for a couple of hours, to his amazement he came upon a couple of skeletons, the necks, arms and legs of which had been tightly bound to each other by iron links. They were in an erect position and it was evident that they were the remains of men who had been immured hundreds of years ago. The wine grower lost no time in drawing the attention of local antiquarians to his discovery and a careful investigation revealed further the presence of fragments of clothing which had been almost reduced to dust, as well as of a rusty weapon and two pieces of wood.

The skeletons are to be placed in the Bordeaux museum, and great pains are being taken to insure their transport in the same position as that in which they were found. There is no doubt that some tragedy of the middle ages, of which possibly some record may survive, led to the confinement of these unfortunate victims in the manner described. It is a matter of course that the strange discovery is engaging the attention of antiquarians in that part of France, and it is by no means improbable that some clew to the mystery may be forthcoming ere long.

Progress in Building.

Seven of the world's fair buildings are now so far advanced that they are fast assuming the appearance of finished structures. The rough carpentry work on them is practically done and the ornamental and finishing work is in progress. These buildings are the woman's horticulture, transportation, mines, administration, forestry and fisheries. Five more—the government, fine arts, agriculture, dairy and Illinois state—are erected to the roof lines. The electricity, manufactures and machinery buildings are being advanced rapidly.

THE HOUSE OF STUART.

Historical Errors Concerning Its Living Representative.

Queen Victoria's Claim to That Title a Singular Absurdity—The Count of Paris Alone Entitled to That Distinction.

There is a historical blunder which ever and anon comes up, and which, though of no practical significance, yet cannot be without an imaginative influence on Anglo-Saxons, says Dr. Charles C. Starbuck in the Boston Advertiser. It respects the question: Who is the representative of the Stuarts? The statement is often made that it is the king of Italy, but this is a mistake.

When by death of Henry Stuart, Cardinal York, in 1807, the house of Stuart, and with it all the heirs of James II., became extinct, then as his eldest sister, Mary, had no grandchildren the Stuart representation devolved on King Victor Emmanuel I. of Sardinia as the heir of James' younger sister, Henrietta, duchess of Orleans. Victor Emmanuel's heir for the throne of Sardinia, as he had no sons, was his brother Charles Felix, but for the Stuart representation, which, of course, followed the English rule, it was his eldest daughter, Mary Beatrice. Her heir was her eldest son, Francis V., the last duke of Modena, whom Disraeli, in "Endymion," represents as actually receiving the homage of some English idiots as their true sovereign. At his death without issue in 1875, the Stuart claim (now, of course, purely ideal) passed to his next brother, Ferdinand's only child, the archduchess Maria Theresa, wife of Prince Lewis, of Bavaria, who is thus the representative of the Stuarts, the Tudors and the Plantagenets. The eldest of this lady's four or five sons bears the sign of his famous descent in the name of "Prince Rupert." Thus the ideal claims of the ancient English royalty, having passed from the house of Savoy into the Modenese branch of the house of Hapsburg-Lorraine, will in the next generation be settled in the house of Wittelsbach and ascend the throne of Bavaria, supposing that monarchy to be then in existence.

On the death of Charles Felix in 1831 the Sardinian crown passed to the branch of Savoy-Carignano which parted from the elder line a generation before Henrietta Stuart was born. King Humbert, therefore, and his cousin and wife, Queen Margaret, are not only not the representatives of the Stuarts, but as pointed out in "Chambers' Encyclopedia," they are not descendants of the Stuarts.

Queen Victoria is guilty of a singular absurdity in one of her books when she proudly calls herself, with true royal and feminine toryism, "the representative of the Stuarts." Her house was chosen for the very reason that its election signalized the national rejection of the Stuarts. The act of settlement shows that she is not only not the representative of Charles I., but is not even the representative of his sister Elizabeth until all the posterity of Elizabeth's sons shall be extinct, for the act passes over the sons and over the eldest daughter, the abbess of Maubisson, and fixes on the youngest daughter, Sophia, as being a Protestant. The present dynasty, therefore, reigns by no antiquated right of descent, but by a true act of national election. Victoria is not the representative of the Stuarts, but, which is an infinitely higher dignity, she is, by a free act of national choice, the representative of the majesty of mighty England. And perhaps the now decaying British monarchy would do well to close its long and bestained, but yet illustrious, history, with this long and virtuous reign.

I may remark that the present representative of Elizabeth Stuart, Queen Victoria's ancestress, is said to be, curiously enough, the count of Paris.

The Average Woman.

How many who use the term "average woman," asks the Chicago Times, know what it implies? Physically, it means that she weighs about 117 pounds, and that, if an American, she is somewhat taller than five feet one inch. Observations taken by the French academy relative to the average height of 1,107 Frenchwomen, without shoes, show it to be that much. Dr. Sargeant, from 1,835 observations, concludes that the American woman is nearly two inches taller than the average daughter of France; and Dr. Galton, an Englishman, in 770 measurements, found that the women of Great Britain are the tallest of the three, they exceeding Miss Columbia by fully half an inch. In the matter of weight, though, American femininity is slightly ahead, though the figures are not given.

A Great Memory.

The late John J. Hawkins, formerly connected with the office of first auditor of the treasury, was noted for his wonderful memory and for the fact that he was one of the three custodians appointed by Secretary Sherman in 1877 to deliver one hundred million dollars in United States bonds to the Rothschilds in London. As an instance of the exactness and accuracy of his memory he once in a dispute whether a certain man had been lieutenant governor of Indiana gave off-hand a list of all the lieutenant governors from the formation of the state, together with their dates of service.

UTILITY OF RATS.

They Figure in the Commerce of Various Lands.

It has often been said that the glove makers of Paris make use in their trade of the skins of rats which are caught in the sewers, but this has been denied. Certainly, says the Washington Star, the material would not be strong enough to successfully counterfeit the kid unless it were for the thumb part only, which is generally of a thinner and different kind of leather from the rest.

A thrifty Welshman at one time exhibited himself publicly in England attired in a costume composed from top to toe of ratskins, which he had spent three years and a half in collecting. The dress was made entirely by himself. It consisted of hat, neckerchief, coat, waistcoat, trousers, tippet, gaiters and shoes. The number of rats required to complete the suit was [illegible] hundred and seventy. Most curious of the garments was the tippet, composed entirely of rats' tails.

The negro slaves of Jamaica used to regard them as a dainty, their masters not providing them with any other meat. Their method of cooking the toothsome rodents was to impale each one on a long wooden skewer after cleaning the animal and cutting off the tail, turning it briskly around over a fire until the hair was all burned off. Then it was scraped until free from fur, and finally the end of the skewer was stuck into the ground, inclined toward the fire, until it was toasted dry and crisp, thus being made ready for the meal.

Rats may commonly be seen for sale in the markets of any Chinese town, split and pressed under a heavy weight so as to look somewhat like dried fish. In this shape the pig tailed Oriental buys them, soaks them in water and then boils, roasts or fries them.

A HEALTHFUL REGION.

Its Atmosphere Has a Restorer of Lost Lungs.

Not long ago a Chicago Tribune writer was in a country noted for its healthfulness. One of the men whose business it is to boom the town told the following as an inducement:

"There was a man who lived in Illinois who had consumption. He had ten thousand dollars' life insurance which he had placed on his life before he became marked. The doctors told him he could not live six months. His friends encouraged him [illegible]. He told them he did not think he would live that long, and that he did not care if he died the next day. He made a sale of his life insurance policy at seventy-five cents on the dollar and came here with his seventy-five hundred dollars in money. He went to the cemetery here and bought a lot and got it mighty cheap, for there was never much demand for that sort of real estate in this vicinity. While he was fixing it up and while he was cultivating the acquaintance of an undertaker he began to get better. He had one lung when he came here and you could hear him breathe a block away. He lingered until he began to pick up, and the first thing we knew he had sold his lot in the cemetery. He actually grew a new lung without taking anything except the blessed atmosphere of this glorious climate. He got well of the consumption. He went into business on his life insurance money and lived ten years. His death was caused then by an accident. He had grown to be a rich man before he departed this life."

THE REAL TEST.

Going Up in a Balloon Is Easier Than Coming Down.

A new view of the aeronaut's skill is that given in "A Winter Cruise in Summer Seas." An Irish balloonist once said to the author of the book: "We speak of the number of a man's ascents, as if that gave the measure of his skill. It would be more to the point, I think, to speak of his descents, for those are the real tests."

"I thought one involved the other," was the reply.

"Then, sir, you thought wrong! The balloon makes the ascent for you, but you must arrange the descent and make it for yourself. If you leave it to the balloon, all the happy chances in life may not save you."

"But what can happen? At least you will come down somewhere!"

"As a matter of fact," was the rejoinder, "I knew a man who made two ascents and only one descent. When he was four miles high the balloon was struck by lightning and it and all its contents were swept into space. For all I know they are at this day revolving in impalpable dust round the earth."

Such a statement is worth considering before taking very extended aerial journeys. Most of us would object to becoming star-dust, and few are sufficiently brilliant.

Minute Trees.

The Japanese art of making miniature landscapes and gardens consists chiefly in starving the plants so as to retard the circulation of the sap of life-giving juices. Furguson, who was one among the first of English adventurers to visit China and Japan, mentions the fact that he saw at Canton, "a boxe about the bigness of ladyes snuffe-boxe, which did contain a littyl dirt and eighteen tiny littyl trees, foure of which were in full blow, the whole boxe, trees and all, so small that a man could put them in hys mouth together."

THE CONVICTION OF WITCHES.

Juries Appointed to Investigate Their Cases.

A jury of the sex accused was appointed to examine the body for marks. It often happened, says the New England Magazine, that some excrescence of flesh common to old people or easily explainable by natural causes, was found. One such was found on the body of [illegible] the court, all but one of the jury agreeing to the report. Rebecca Preston and Mary Tarbell knew that this mark was from natural causes. The prisoner stated to the court that the dissenting woman of the jury of examination was one of the most ancient, skillful and prudent, and further declared "I there rendered a sufficient known reason of the moving cause thereof." She asked for the appointment of another jury to inquire into the case and examine the marks found on her person. The jury of trials returned a verdict of not guilty. Thereupon all the accusers in the court "cried out" with renewed vigor and were taken in the most violent fits, rolling and tumbling about, creating a scene of the wildest confusion. The judges told the jurymen that they had not carefully considered one expression of the prisoner's reply: That when one Hobbs, a confessing witch, was brought in as evidence against her, she said: "What, do you bring her? She is one of us." The jury retired for further consultation. Even then they could not agree upon a verdict of guilty. They returned to the courtroom and desired that the accused explain the remark. She made no response and the jury returned a verdict of guilty.

SAVED BY A SHOT.

A Boy's Life Preserved by a Well Directed Bullet.

A boy of sixteen was leading a bull along a country road in Massachusetts, when the animal, usually peaceful, seemed to be seized with a sudden fury, and made a lunge at him. The stick which was fastened to a ring in the animal's nose snapped short in the boy's grasp, and he fell almost under the feet of the bull. He had presence of mind enough, says a writer in Golden Days, to realize that his only chance for safety lay in keeping so close to the head of the animal that he could not be tossed, so he managed to get three fingers of his left hand into the ring in the bull's nose, while with his right he grasped around the horns. Meanwhile the farmer who owned the bull had got a rifle from the house and loaded it. "Fire!" cried the boy. "I can't hold out much longer." The bull, as if astonished at the audacity of his victim, had for a moment stopped. His forehead was presented to the farmer, but the boy's head was within a few inches of the spot which the bullet must strike. "If I fire," the farmer cried, "the ball may flatten on the bone and kill you on the rebound." "Fire anyway, and quick!" cried the boy, as the bull showed signs of moving. The farmer raised his rifle and fired, and the shot was so true that the bull dropped in his tracks without a struggle, and the boy's life was saved.

ACCIDENT DATA.

Interesting Facts Concerning Different Industries.

Some instructive data are derived from a report recently published in Germany. In 1880, 5,200 workmen were killed in accidents, and 35,502 seriously injured. These losses do not vary much from one year to another. The industries furnishing most accidents are as follows, in descending order: Mines, railways, quarries, subterranean works, buildings, breweries. All industries are arranged in 64 corporations, and it is estimated that more than 4,500,000 of work people are insured. Wounds and fractures are the most usual forms of injury, and the duration of treatment tends to increase every year, by virtue of a law which makes an allowance when incapacity for work exceeds three weeks (this was based on the observation that fractures generally healed in three weeks). Since this law was introduced, the treatment of fracture has taken longer. There are always more accidents in winter than in summer, and on Mondays and Saturdays than on other days. There are twice as many accidents from 9 a. m. to noon, and from 3 to 6 p. m., than from 6 to 9 a. m., and from noon to 3 p. m. Better light in summer and fatigue toward the end of each half day of six hours, are supposed to explain some of these variations.

People Who Wear Celluloid.

There is a store down-town that has in it what is known as the celluloid counter. On the counter is a large showcase that contains nothing but celluloid collars, cuffs and shirt fronts. "Is there much celluloid worn now?" asked the writer of the proprietor. "A great deal," was the answer. "I have a trade in it which keeps one man busy at this showcase. The people who mostly purchase celluloid are traveling men, railroad conductors, physicians and military men. In fact, it is worn nearly altogether in the army. I should say there is more celluloid worn now than ever before."

Six Hundred Miles a Second.

During an exceedingly violent eruption in the sun, observed by astronomers on the 18th of last June, masses of matter were projected into space. It is estimated, at the rate of six hundred miles a second. This speed was so long continued that these masses must have escaped the attraction of the sun.

TARIFF [illegible]

These are melancholy days for the tin plate liar, who sees the production of American tin and terne plates steadily increasing. The official statistics of the United States Treasury Department show that the product of domestic tin and terne plate for the three months ending September 30, 1891, was 826,922 pounds. For the three months ending March 31, 1892, it was 3,004,087 pounds.

During 1890 foreign manufactures of cotton, wool, silk, jute, iron and steel, chemicals, glass and earthenware were imported into the United States to the value of $231,601,696. During 1891 our consumption of these articles did not decrease. Yet we imported of them only $191,[illegible],445. The product of well paid American labor supplied the difference.

CLEVELAND NOMINATED.

Cleveland was nominated for President by the Democrats at Chicago on Wednesday on the first ballot, he receiving 616⅙ votes Hill got 112, the New York delegation giving him a solid vote of 71. Whitney engineered Cleveland's fight, but he could not control the New Yorkers. The nomination gives the Republicans unbounded satisfaction, as he is the easiest man in the whole pack to beat.

The Republican legislative district conventions will court defeat this Fall unless they declare beyond doubt their position toward M. H. De Young, proprietor of the San Francisco Chronicle. That journal has supplied by all varieties of methods the means by which it has been made possible for Mr. De Young's nerve and push to allow him to aspire to the ownership of the Republican party of California; and now a candidate for the Senate. Mr. De Young's leadership is more apparent than real.—The Chronicle is a power, beyond question, but the body of the press and party through California cordially despise Mr. De Young, nevertheless. They appreciate his peculiar abilities just far enough to make a Democratic Legislature almost a certainty unless Republican Assembly candidates, in even such strong districts as this, pledge themselves unequivocally against the energetic but designing and utterly unscrupulous Mike. Republican managers who want Felton or anybody else will never get their man to the Senate unless they look to this matter very carefully. Just stick a pin in here.—Inyo Register.

The London Star is a twinkling orb in the firmament of British free trade, and it celebrates the result of the Minneapolis convention by making a violent attack upon Mr. Blaine because of his position as a protectionist, and winds up with a long, loud and deep vociferation for Cleveland and free trade. The Star concludes with the declaration that "the sympathies of all free traders and liberals should be with the champion of reform, Grover Cleveland."—That is good, honest, straightout British free trade talk. The Star is indisputably right. Not merely the sympathy, but the money assistance of all free traders should and will go out to Grover Cleveland. The free traders are for him.

Already American genius has begun to improve on the antiquated methods of tin plate manufacture in vogue among Welsh makers. A Philadelphia company has in operation a machine which produces terne plates in a continuous roll. The blank steel sheets are simply fed into a set of rollers and they come out at the other end of the machine all coated, polished and soldered into a continuous sheet. This is how the Yankee manufacturers are going to give us cheaper tin and terne plates than ever before, if we only give them a little time.—American Economist.

"The resolution, energy and persistence which marked the proceedings of the Convention in Minneapolis will, if turned against a common foe, win the election.—All minor differences should be merged in the duty of every Republican to do all in his power to elect the ticket this day nominated by the National Republican Convention."—James G. Blaine.

De Young got off on the wrong foot four years ago, when Harrison was first nominated, he did the same in the Gubernatorial campaign that nominated Markham, and accordingly by force of habit, he put obstacles in the way of the winner in the contest just ended. He will now return to the State and his cold dish of crow.—Napa Register.

TIN PLATE.

Swansea Manufacturers Moving Their Plants to the United States.

At Norristown, Pa., a large force of men has begun work within a mile of Norristown, preparing a plant for the first foreign tin-plate manufacturers to cross the Atlantic and locate here. There was no flourish of trumpets to announce their coming.—Richard Lewis, manager for W. H. Edwards, the owner of a number of tin mills at Swansea, Wales, says it is an experiment that must effect hundreds of mills now stretched along the Swansea Valley, in which the tin plate of the world has been manufactured for years.

Mr. Lewis arrived in America on May 18, and immediately set out to select a site for his plant. He picked out an abandoned manufactory at Earnest Station, on the Pennsylvania railroad. The site is selected with the ultimate purpose of removing the entire plant from Wales. The factory will begin operations with a capacity of 140 tons of tin per week. Nine workmen from Swansea district are here putting the machinery in place, and in six week's time it is expected that its product will be put out. E. W. Moore & Co., another large tin firm, has sent a representative to this country, and he has decided to locate at Elizabethport, N. J.

THE DEFEAT OF HENRY CLAY.

He wrote a Letter.

There is a warning truth as well as a touch of pathos in the reply of General Barnes when asked to make a speech at a whoop-up meeting to celebrate the renomination of Harrison "See these gray hairs," he said, "they have come by twenty-five years service to the Republican party, and what have I got for it?" It is men of talent who win success for parties, but it is trickery and dishonest schemers who secure all the fruits of that success. Henry Clay held the first place in the hearts of his countrymen, but the money interest and its tools, the wire pullers, were against him, and the satisfaction of being right was his only reward for all his labor. The fate of Blaine is a repetition of that of Clay.—Inyo Independent.

The "money interest and its tools, the wire pullers" were not against Henry Clay. The writer of this article voted in New York city for Henry Clay and "Protection to American Industries" in 1844, and was well posted upon the political situation.—The cause of the defeat of Mr. Clay was two fold—writing a letter, and the nomination of Frelinghuysen for Vice President. His opponent, James K. Polk, was strictly enjoined not to write a letter or open his mouth, and he did neither.—But Clay, under date of April 17th, 1844, published a letter in the National Intelligencer, in which he said "Annexation and war with Mexico are identical. Now, for one, I certainly am not willing to involve this country in a foreign war for the object of acquiring Texas." And under date of August 16, he wrote to two Alabama friends in which he modified his views and thus offended the Abolitionists. The consequence was that they nominated James G. Birney for President and the State of New York went against Clay by the slim plurality of 5,106 in a vote of 500,000—Polk, 237,588; Clay, 232,782; Birney, 15,812; the latter being abolition Whigs. Frelinghuysen was President of the American Bible Society. It had sent, that Summer, Bibles to Italy, which by order of the Pope were burned in St. Peter's Square. The news reached New York during the campaign and caused great excitement among the Protestants, and the Democrats appealed to the Catholics to vote against Frelinghuysen. These combinations defeated Clay, otherwise New York would have elected him.

Order to Show Cause Why Order of Sale of Real Estate Should Not Be Made.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE COUNTY of Mono, State of California.

In the Matter of the Estate of CLARK EGGLESTON, Deceased.

Adaline Eggleston, the Executrix of the Estate of Clark Eggleston, Deceased, having filed her verified Petition herein praying for an Order of Sale of the whole of the Real Estate, together with the water rights thereto appertenant or in any way connected, of said decedent, for the purposes therein set forth.

It is hereby ordered by the said Court that all persons interested in the Estate of said Deceased, appear before the said Superior Court on at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at the Court Room of said Superior Court, at the Court House, in County of Mono, to show cause why an Order should not be granted to the said Adaline Eggleston, Executrix of said Estate, to sell all the Real Estate of the said deceased, together with the water rights appendent and appurtenant thereto.

And that a copy of this Order be published at least Four successive weeks in the BRIDGEPORT CHRONICLE-UNION, a newspaper printed and published in said Mono County, State of California.

NO AMERICANS ALLOWED.

Down in Nipomo, San Louis Obispo County, the other day, the Portuguese residents had a celebration, and this is what a prominently displayed placard said: "No Americans allowed to dance in this hall." Clearly the glad time draws near when the man born in this country will be compelled to wear a badge with some such sentence as this printed on it: "I was born in the United States but I could not help it; please forgive me." The Mail wishes that it had some method of ascertaining just what proportion of the "Portuguese" who attended that dance were naturalized citizens of the United States. It does not doubt that a considerable portion of them were. The fact is the case is that this country is filled with naturalized citizens who have not the least idea of the duties of citizenship.—They have sworn allegiance to Uncle Sam, but they are still "Portuguese," "Italians," etc., and are entirely ready to notify "Americans" to keep out of their hall.—More stringent naturalization laws would not entirely remedy this evil, but they would do much in that direction. As long as voters are made of human cattle we must expect that they will recognize no kinship to anybody or anything except the herd.—Stockton Mail.

GRAND BALL
BRYANT'S HALL,

A Leap Year Difficulty.

Recently a young lady wrote to the editor of a paper asking "whether it would be proper for girls, during leap year to get on their knees when they propose to young men?" The editor, who, like all other newspaper men, was a church member, said the question was not sufficiently clear, and asked, "On whose knees?" [illegible] is not room enough to even mention briefly the scores of resorts throughout California.

In MOUNTAINS we have between Shasta on the north and San Jacinto on the south the myriad peaks of the Sierras and the Coast Range.

In LAKES there are scores, from the small glacier cups to the great inland seas of Tahoe, Clear and Tulare.

In MINERAL SPRINGS we have hundreds that cure all sorts of ailments.

In SEASIDE RESORTS there are scattered along the coast at convenient intervals enough salt-bathing and recuperating establishments to accommodate all inland leisure seekers.

There is therefore no lack of variety, and no excuse for the dweller by the sea in not making a tour into the mountains, or the dweller in the inland valleys and mountains in not seeking a journey to the sea.

The sum total of these remarks is that you reader need a change; you can better afford to take one than not. Mark that. You can take your choice of localities and you may be breaking some of the commandments if you do not attend to this matter.

BRIDGEPORT, JUNE 25, 1892

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Personal.

Charles Purdy, late Superintendent of the Dunderberg mine, arrived from San Francisco on Saturday last by Gelatt's stage.

Mrs. Mary B. Moore and Miss Laura Musser, nieces of Mrs. Dan. M. Barnett, of Coleville, arrived at Coleville on Monday from Boulder Hill, Kentucky, having been only five days en route from their "Old Kentucky Home," and two of them were spent in Carson, they having arrived there on Saturday. They will spend the summer, if not longer, with their aunt.

C. B. Putnam, of San Francisco, arrived here on Tuesday by Gelatt's stage. He returned home on yesterday's stage.

T. B. Rickey and William Bender were up from Antelope the first of the week

R. S. Minor went to Bodie this morning with Chas. Taylor.

FOR "MEN ONLY."—Rev. Wilson will lecture this evening to "Men Only." The discourse delivered by him on Thursday evening was more fitted for "men only" than for the audience he had. It was disgusting, and an insult to those present, who are not used to hear such utterances from the pulpit, and they were a disgrace to the one who uttered them. If the gentleman's instincts will not permit of the use of chaste and refined language—for this is not his first offense of this kind here, and a like complaint comes from Bodie, he should retire from the ministry.

ASSEMBLYMAN.—The Inyo Register says that ex-Assemblyman Gould, of that county, is mentioned for the Assembly, and that "his record was highly creditable, and to have him go again would, we believe, be generally satisfactory."

Mr. Gould was one of the best Assemblymen we have had, if not the best, and we think the Republicans of this county would cheerfully support him. But we want to know how he stands on the De Young question for Senator. No man can have our support who will vote for De Young for U. S. Senator.

PAPER HOUSE.—William Rickey, at Rickey's Station, at the junction of the Antelope and Sonora roads, has lately erected a paper house—that is the weather boarding, as it were, is paper, and also the roofing.—It makes a fine finish and appearance, and has been well tried by the elements. If after a few months exposure to the hot sun and snows it proves satisfactory, it will be in favor in place of rustic, which costs a fortune to get here, having to come from Carson.

A PEST.—It is reported that an army of gophers, squirrels, etc., has invaded Mason Valley, and coming West, devouring every thing in their way. They have done immense damage in Mason Valley, Nev. The farmers of Antelope Valley are fearing their visitation, and bewailing the loss of the festive and musical coyote, who lived on such pests. The member of Assembly from this District next Winter will be called on to vote for a repeal of the bounty Act.

THE BODIE CON.—The annual meeting of the Bodie Consolidated Mining Co. was held at San Francisco on Monday, when the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Geo. L. Ives; Vice-President, L. Osborn; Secretary, H. D. Walker; Superintendent, John W. Kelly, and the Bank of California Treasurer. An assessment of 25 cents was levied.

THANKS.—We thank the Bodie Miners' Union for a complimentary ticket to their annual Fourth of July ball. It goes without saying that the balls given by the Union are first-class in every particular, and for a worthy object—the replenishing of their benefit fund. We hope it will b largely attended.

THE CHRONICLE-UNION FLAG is waving to-day, in compliment to our Democratic friends, on the nomination of Cleveland.—At the same time we feel much jubilant ourselves over his selection. He is a daisy to beat.

A HAPPY MAN.—Ex-Supervisor Harvey Boone is just now the happiest man in Mono county, and he ought to be. We congratulate the Boone family on the arrival of the heir. May he live long and prosper!

ANNUAL MEETING.—The annual meeting of the California & Nevada Wool Growers' Association will be held at Fales' Hot Springs on the 5th of July for the election of officers.

HOT SHOT.—Rev. Wilson has poured hot shot at the saloon interests in his sermons this week, but some of those in the business have attended his meetings quite frequently and contributed liberally.

NEW QUARTERS.—Marion Richardson has fitted up the portion of the Gurney building formerly used as a butcher shop for a saloon, and has one of the neatest places of resort in town.

SCHOOL TRUSTEES.—At the late election for School Trustees, A. P. Snow was elected in the Antelope District, and J. McKay and W. T. Barnes in the South Antelope District.

WILL MEET.—The Board of Supervisors will meet in regular session on next Tuesday week.

NOT A SUCCESS.—Revs. Wilson and Bradley have held religious services here this week in hopes of creating a revival in religious matters but we have heard of no one being taken into the fold, although we are glad to be able to say that the ministrations have had a favorable effect on some of the legal profession, or seemingly so: but Rev. Wilson, who has been the center of the occasion, was a trifle too sweeping in his criticisms of Californian civilization, he being a new arrival from the "cultured" East.—The assertions that "there is no civilization" in California; that we are not Sabbath observers, and attacking our merchants, who mostly live in their store buildings, for opening their store doors on a Sunday morning, coupled with the remark that "he would rather go on the highway and break rock for a living," are not calculated to arouse a religious fervor in our community. Has not a merchant the same right to sell his wares on a Sunday as a minister has to sell his sermon on that day for pay? We can see no difference—both are after the "almighty dollar," and it ill becomes a minister of the Gospel to denounce our people as "heathens" because they do not buy his song books and kill their fat yellow-legged chickens for his pleasure. We would remind the gentleman that the Methodist Conference has sent men to preach to us who would have done better "breaking rock on the highway" than in the pulpit. Again, Rev. Wilson is agitating the matter of erecting a church in this town. Bridgeport would to-day have a Church edifice that would have been a credit to our town, as our Court House is, had it not been for the intolerance of the Church he represents. A foundation was laid for a church building some ten years ago, on a donated lot on Main street, and a mill man, resident here, offered to donate $500 worth of lumber for the building, a Catholic carpenter offered to give his services in its erection, and others volunteered their services in its erection, with the understanding, however, that it should be a free church—open to every denomination; but the resident Methodist minister put a stop to its erection by asserting that it should only be used for Methodist meetings. Our community has a sprinkling of Baptists, Catholics, Episcopalians, Presbyterians, Lutherans, Friends or Quakers, and perhaps others, the Methodist element being very light, and ministers visiting this town must not be intolerant, if they hope to accomplish good, as they profess a desire to do.

IMPROVEMENT.—Tom Fales has just laid a new floor in his Brick Saloon, and given his establishment its general Spring renovation.

CANDIDATES' BALL.—The Antelopers are to have a Candidates' Ball at Coleville about the middle of October.

The Gopher Pest.

The Italians on the Roger ranch on the Carson river below Dayton, brought up 9,300 gopher scalps, last Wednesday, and filed a claim of $139 50 against the county, being a cent and a half a scalp, bounty.—Other parties have also brought in several thousand scalps and filed claims against the county. There is a difference of opinion as to whether the pestiferous animals are gophers or squirrels, and there is some doubt about the bounty being allowed.—According to Webster the animals come nearer being gophers than anything else.—In the mean time the grain, alfalfa and vegetable crops are being rapidly destroyed all over the county by the pests, notwithstanding the fact that the soaking rain of last Sunday and Monday drowned thousands of them.—Dayton, Nev.

GOOD WORDS.

The Sacramento Record Union is publishing extracts from the papers of the Eastern editors who recently visited California, and all we have scanned speak in the very highest terms of this State, and her people, and such publications, from the press of acute observers who saw all of which they wrote about, cannot but have the effect to enlist the attention of the people of the East, particularly in the tempest and cyclone States, to the greatly favored State of California. The visiting editors are returning good words for California for the mean things some, and we are glad to say, but very few, of our California papers have said of them.

Inyo county has had a homicide. On Saturday, the 11th, Bart McGee and George Reynolds had an altercation near Laws, over some of McGee's cattle which Reynolds had carolled the night before and would not give up when McGee went after them.—Reynolds fired a shot gun at McGee, who then struck Reynolds over the head with a rail, causing the latter's death. The Coroner's jury returned a verdict that McGee committed the deed in self-defense.

ACROSS THE DEEP, TO THE FAR WEST. On steamboats, cars and stage coaches, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is carried as the most important item in the materia medica of the travelling public. It deprives vitiated, brackish water of its hurtful properties and execrable flavor, counteracts the pernicious effects upon the stomach of bad or indigestible food, remedies cramps, heartburn and wind upon the stomach. It is a fine defense against malarial disorders, nullifies the effects of excessive heat, cold and damp, relieves sick-headaches, and is an incomparable cure for costiveness and biliousness.—The fatigue of travel often tells most disastrously upon invalids, and convalescents, occasionally to such an extent as to jeopardize life. Persons in feeble health, apprehensive of bad effects from travel, will, if provided with the Bitters, be far less likely to have their fears realized.

The Inyo Register seems to have a "charming" correspondent, who is anxious to be annexed to Inyo county. Were we in love with Inyo we would move there.

The Republican State Convention, to nominate Electors and Congressmen, will be held at Sacramento July 26th. Mono is entitled to two delegates.

There are 1490 acres of watermelons in the vicinity of Lodi. What a Paradise Lodi would be for the Southern darkies.

THIS PAPER [illegible]

ABOARD A BUCCANEER.

No Regular Rules, but Traditions That Were Religiously Observed.

The customs and regulations most commonly observed on board a buccaneer are worth noting. Every private captain, doubtless, had his own set of rules; but there were certain traditional articles that seem to have been generally adopted. The captain had the state cabin, a double vote in elections, a double share of booty, explains the National Review. On some vessels it was the captain who decided what direction to sail in; but this and other matters of moment were oftener settled by a vote of the company, the captain's vote counting for two. The officers had a share and a half or a share and a quarter of all plunder, and the sailors one share each. Booty was divided with scrupulous care and marooning was the penalty of attempting to defraud the general company, if only to the amount of a gold piece or a dollar. Every man has a full vote in every affair of importance.

Arms were always to be clean and fit for service, and desertion of the ship or quarters in battle was punished with death. On Roberts' ship a man who was crippled in battle received eight hundred dollars out of the common stock, and a proportionate sum was awarded for lesser hurts. Lowther allowed one hundred and fifty pounds sterling for the loss of a limb, and other captains instituted a sort of tariff of wounds which extended to ears, fingers and toes. In chase or battle the captain's power was absolute. He who first spied a sail, if she proved to be a prize, was entitled to the best pair of pistols over and above his dividend. These pistols were greatly coveted and a pair would sell for as much as thirty pounds sterling from one pirate to another. In their own commonwealth the pirates are reported to have been severe upon the point of honor, and among Roberts' crew it was the practice to slit the ears or nose of any sailor found guilty of robbing his fellows.

Such feeble interest as now attaches to what was once the formidable fame of the pirates is not even æsthetic, it is merely comic. No imaginative essayist discusses piracy as a fine art; but Paul Jones is resurrected as the hero of a musical burlesque. Poor Paul! And he is almost the only one of the buccaneering race whose story discovers a trace of the legendary gallantry of piracy. Paul, whose father had been head gardener to Lord Selkirk, plundered the Selkirk mansion of its plate, which he subsequently returned in a parcel to Lady Selkirk with a letter of polite apology.

LOVED TO DREAM.

A Business Man Who Sometimes Gave Free Rein to Fancy.

Blessed be they who never grow too tired or too old or too busy to dream! Blessed be the man who never gets to be so thoroughly a business man that he cannot find time to go to Italy on a magnolia bough in springtime, or to Egypt on a lotus flower, says Amber in Chicago Herald. "I have heard it said that we have no mountains in this western country," said a grizzled old member of the board of trade to me the other day. "Why, we have rosier peaks and whiter summits than any alps, every clear night along the western horizon, and sometimes I can almost hear the winding of a hunter's horn adown their far defiles." Wasn't that a beautiful fancy for an old wheat-reckoner to keep in his heart? And do you think such a man will ever quite lose his passport papers to the fair country over the border? Why, my dear, half this world, what with its money getting and its greed of gain, won't know what to do with themselves in Heaven if God's love ever gets them there. They will see nothing but ninety-five per cent. specimens in the golden streets, and a good greenhouse speculation in the garden of paradise! Cultivate a little more sentiment, indulge now and then in a little romance, open the windows of your soul to the south and let the soft breezes blow through and perfume up your rusty old heart a bit; it will not harm you, and it will make you an infinitely more pleasant companion than you now are.

HOW HE CALLED THE COW.

A Suburbanite's Ingenious Plan for Saving Steps.

He lives just outside the corporation limits, says the Maryland Farmer, where there are large commons on which the cows pasture. Having a large lawn, he mows the grass with an attachment to his lawn-mower which catches the grass cut. Thus he feeds to his cow at night, and her toothsome lunch of fresh-mown grass has come to be a looked-for evening occurrence. The other evening a friend went out to spend the night. After tea the gentleman's wife remarked to him: "The cow has not come home yet; hadn't you better start her?" "Yes," was the answer, and then while his city friend watched to see him perform the office of cowboy he deliberately got out his lawnmower and began trundling back and forth across the shaven sod, as though there was no matter of cream for the coffee next morning at stake. "Did you forget what your wife said about the cow?" the friend asked presently. "Forget? No, isn't she there?" He looked in the direction indicated, and there, sure enough, was Sukey with her nose over the fence. "Send a boy after her?" "No, I called her." "But I didn't hear you." "Yes, you did; you've been standing right here." "But you haven't said a word." "But I called the cow just the same, and she heard the [illegible] the noise of the lawnmower." And sure enough, every night when the cow hears that, she comes trotting home.

The Champion Dreamer.

A woman in Augusta, Me., now and then dreams that there is a letter for her in the post office. If she does not receive the letter from the carrier in the morning she walks to the office and demands it, and, as a rule, one is forthcoming. She says that in her dreams she sees the superscription just as clearly as if it were before her in reality.
